

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is in the process of modifying some of the flight paths and/or altitudes of flights to and from the Los Angeles International Airport (LAX). This FAA project is called the Southern California Metroplex. A Metroplex is a geographic area covering several airports serving major metropolitan areas, such as the Los Angeles Basin.

On June 10, 2015, the FAA released the Southern California Metroplex Draft Environmental Assessment (EA) which is available for review on this website:

http://www.metroplexenvironmental.com/socal\_metroplex/socal\_introduction.html .

The Draft EA considers the potential environmental impacts of the Southern California Metroplex project, including noise impacts. The FAA invites the public to attend public information workshops for the Draft EA and to make comments. During the workshops, representatives from the FAA and its Consultant Team will be available to answer questions about the project. The location and dates of the public workshops are listed below and on the website under the above link.

How to Comment

The FAA encourages interested parties to review the EA, and provide written comments during the public comment period. Written comments will be accepted by the FAA until Friday, July 10, 2015. The public is invited to comment by mail or email.
